This file is comprised of the forms that we need you to complete prior to your initial diagnostic evaluation with the Center for Cognitive Therapy. (Alternatively, you may fill them out on your computer and return them via encrypted e-mail). It is very important that you fill them out in their entirety prior to your evaluation. We appreciate your time and effort in completing this lengthy and important questionnaire. If you have any questions, please feel free to contact Dr. Cory F. Newman at (215) 898-3466. We look forward to being of assistance to you.

OUR LOCATION

The Center for Cognitive Therapy is located at 3535 Market Street, which is on the northeast corner of 36th and Market Street. If your appointment is on site, please use the elevator after signing in with Security in the lobby and go to the 3rd floor, where you will check in. After making payment for your appointment, please take the elevator to the 4th floor Center for Cognitive Therapy waiting room (on the side of the floor opposite Suite 4100). The therapist who will be conducting your intake evaluation will come out to greet you.

Thank you.

The therapists and staff of the Center for Cognitive Therapy

I would like to tell you a few important points about the Center for Cognitive Therapy and its policies.

The Center for Cognitive Therapy is a treatment and training center. Your initial appointment at the Center is a two-hour diagnostic evaluation that typically takes place with an advanced-degree-candidate assessment trainee. Please keep in mind that the purpose of this evaluation is not to provide therapy; rather, it is to obtain a comprehensive picture of your problems, provide a preliminary diagnosis, and ascertain what treatment program can be of benefit to you. If our evaluation indicates that cognitive-behavioral therapy will be an appropriate treatment for you, we will then assign a therapist to begin meeting with you for sessions. However, if the results of our evaluation suggest that outpatient cognitive-behavioral therapy may not be the treatment of choice for you at this time, we will then refer you to a more appropriate treatment setting, and we will forward the results of our evaluation (with your permission).

Research has indicated that a full course of treatment yields the most positive results. Cognitive-behavioral therapy is designed to be a short-term treatment (usually 12 to 20 sessions); however, depending on the nature and severity of your problems, the desirable length of treatment may be longer than this. You and your therapist will collaboratively decide on the length of your treatment, and this decision does not have to be made at the start. It is important to keep in mind that dropping out of therapy prematurely has been shown to reduce the benefits of cognitive-behavioral therapy.

If in the future you need to cancel a therapy session, please notify your therapist prior to the session, so you can reschedule the session at the first opportunity. The Center's policy is to require a minimum of 24 hours' notice for cancellation (in regards to the evaluation as well as therapy sessions). If you contact us on the day of the appointment to cancel or simply fail to arrive, you may be charged for the missed appointment. Please make every effort to speak to your therapist regarding any appointment cancellation before the 24-hour deadline. [Note: If you arrive late for a scheduled session, your therapist may still be available to see you, but only for the remainder of the time that has been allotted for your visit. However, you will be billed for the entire time for which the appointment was scheduled.]

Enclosed in this packet you will find several forms. Please complete these at home and bring them with you on the day of your evaluation (or return them via encrypted e-mail). This will facilitate the evaluation process. At the time of your evaluation, please feel free to ask any question you may have regarding cognitive-behavioral therapy in general for the Center for Cognitive Therapy in particular. Thank you in advance for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Cory Newman, Ph.D., ABPP
Director

CENTER POLICIES ON PATIENT FEES

The Center for Cognitive Therapy is a non-profit organization which is part of the Department of Psychiatry in the University of Pennsylvania Health System. The purpose of this statement is to explain our fee structure and suggest ways to make payments more easily.

We require patients to pay their fee or co-pay each time they have a session. If your session is on-site, please plan to arrive ten minutes before each session in order to check in with the administrative assistant, pay your bill for that session (via cash, personal check, Visa, MasterCard or Discover), and receive a receipt, as well as complete the appropriate session forms (such as the Beck mood inventories).

If you plan to seek out-of-network reimbursement from your insurance company, the receipt which you will be given contains all the information and codes needed by your insurance company. You should attach this to any insurance form which your company may require you to submit.

Mental health benefits vary greatly with each insurance company (whether in-network or out-of-network). We suggest that you contact your insurance company to determine your benefits. Things to be determined are: deductibles, percentage of the charge you will be reimbursed, number of visits allowed per year, and if services need to be precertified. Many insurance companies limit the number of mental health visits you may have each year. It is your responsibility to know your benefits and to keep track of sessions used. We will be happy to let you know at any time how many visits you have had with us, but we cannot determine when you have exceeded your limit since the total may include visits you may have had with providers not in our Center.

If your personal information or insurance coverage changes at any point during your treatment here, it is your responsibility to inform our staff immediately of the change. Failure to do so may result in loss of covered benefits here and increase your financial responsibility.

If you must miss an appointment, please give us at least 24 hours' notice. The clinician's time is valuable and, if we have 24 hours notice, we can reschedule other clinical activities for him or her and we will not have to charge you for the missed session. The Center must charge for phone contacts that last beyond 10 minutes. Insurance benefits typically do not cover phone session or no-show fees.

In all instances, please do not hesitate to ask your therapist if you have any questions about our policy.

Please sign below to indicate that you understand all of the information contained above.

Informed Consent to Treatment at the Center for Cognitive Therapy

Welcome to the Center for Cognitive Therapy at the University of Pennsylvania. This document contains important information about our services and policies. It will be a permanent part of your patient record. By signing it, you give your consent to treatment. If you have any questions about this form or other documents, please ask.

Any type of therapy has benefits and risks. Since therapy often involves discussing unpleasant aspects of your life, you may experience uncomfortable feelings. On the other hand, therapy often leads to better relationships, solutions to problems and reductions in distress. The course of therapy differs somewhat for each individual. Cognitive-behavioral therapy calls for active effort on your part, including your participation in the therapy sessions themselves, as well as the therapy homework assignments you will be asked to do.

To obtain treatment at the Center for Cognitive Therapy, you will undergo an evaluation conducted by a licensed clinician or by a trainee supervised by a licensed clinician. If we believe our services would be helpful for you in meeting your objectives, you will be offered therapy with a psychologist, clinical social worker, or supervised trainee (at a lower fee). Typically, therapy sessions are once a week for 45 to 53 minutes, though the frequency of sessions may vary. The number of sessions also varies according to the type of problems you are addressing. You have the right to ask questions regarding your treatment, and your therapist will attempt to answer them to your satisfaction. If you withdraw from treatment, you have the right to a referral to another practitioner.

Most insurance companies require you to authorize your therapist to provide a clinical diagnosis; some require treatment plans or summaries. You can call your insurance company to find out how this information is stored or used. Your insurance company may limit the number of sessions it will cover.

All papers and documents concerning your treatment will be kept confidential. No information concerning your treatment will be released without your written consent, except as required by law or in a situation deemed potentially life threatening. By state law, licensed providers are mandated to report information that professional judgement determines constitutes a threat of serious harm to self or others, or indicates child abuse or neglect. Under these specific circumstances, information about you can be released without your written approval. However, your therapist will make every effort to keep you actively informed about such developments.
