

The 2009 SPARKY Awards @ Penn

Make a Video. Win a Prize. Be Famous.

Public Health Category

Information sharing can be a vital tool in helping to address complex problems that challenge society - like disease, hunger, global warming, and economic disparity. The sharing of ideas gives us ways to discover, collaborate, and create in unprecedented ways.

For the Public Health Category of the 2009 Sparky Awards at Penn, submit a short 2 minute (or less) video, which innovatively illustrates the value of information sharing to the field of Public Health.

Videos must be submitted online on or before December 5, 2009

For Contest Details Please Visit:

<http://www.cphi.upenn.edu/2009VideoContest.shtml>

The Sparky Awards at Penn, hosted by Penn Libraries' Weigle Information Commons, is a local chapter of the larger national video contest, the Sparky Awards. The national contest is sponsored by the Association of College and Research Libraries, the Association of Research Libraries and other national organizations.

Co-sponsors of the Penn chapter of the video contest include: Center for Public Health Initiatives & the Cinema Studies Department.

The Sparky Awards at Penn is open to all University of Pennsylvania students.

High school and non-Penn college students may enter videos independently to the national Sparky Awards contest. More information can be found at <http://www.sparkyawards.org>.

Penn prize details will be available shortly. All entries to the Sparky Awards at Penn will also be entered automatically into the national Sparky Awards contest which offers a grand prize of $1,000 cash award, video-editing software and hardware.

Students: Make a short video to illustrate the value of information sharing.