Major points to consider

- Know what data/samples are collected by CKiD
- Know what ancillary studies have been approved to avoid overlap
- Ancillary proposal versus core data analysis
- Sample request
- Burden to subjects and research coordinators
- Statistical consideration
- Potential Funding
