Interested in global health?

The Center for Global Health is looking for 5-6 graduate students to join an interdisciplinary team that will compete in the

2020 International Emory Global Health Case Competition

The Emory Global Health Case Competition (EGHCC) brings together students from multiple disciplines to address a critical global health challenge in both a competitive and collaborative environment. The competition culminates with presentations to an expert panel of judges, which evaluates the proposals and determines award winners. Winning presentations are typically those that present astutely synthesized, feasible, sustainable, and culturally appropriate solutions to the case problems.

WHEN/WHERE

Friday, March 13 - Sunday, March 15, 2020 at Emory University in Atlanta, GA

- Food/Housing/Flights are provided
- Fun & rewarding opportunity to put your global health knowledge into practice
- Prize Amounts: 1st place $6000; 2nd place $3000; 3rd place $1500

EXPECTATIONS

- Commitment to team meetings leading up to competition
- Team members should recognize that the competition takes a lot of work to do well!

To apply, send your CV & statement of interest (500 words max) to ayost@pennmedicine.upenn.edu by December 13