MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

Dear Faculty, Staff and Trainees,

It has been quite a ride! With the surge of Omicron over the last weeks, our hospitals have been packed and our communities swamped with new cases. Penn directives to work remotely where possible were implemented to maximize safety for our employees and minimize exposure. I’ve been following the COVID-19 census across UPHS very closely and I am pleased to say that the number of new admissions with COVID-19 is decreasing across most, but not all, of our hospitals. Notable exceptions include Lancaster General Hospital, HUP Cedar and Penn Presbyterian, which have numbers of admissions that have remained flat. I feel hopeful that we are about to turn the corner based on this and other leading indicators (number of new cases in the Philadelphia region). For those of you who are data hounds like me, below is a pic:
As we turn the corner (hopefully!!), please remember the importance of continuing to protect yourself and your family. Masking and social distancing when possible will remain a key strategy, but perhaps we will be able to stop being complete hermits!

Of course the consequences of COVID-19 surges are myriad and for us as a hospital and health system, they have important consequences due to the fact that they displace many of the important procedures and interventions that are time-sensitive and also help us sustain fiscal viability. As we go into budget season, I anticipate some belt-tightening will be needed. I do ask your forbearance in that regard.

It goes without saying that I am incredibly grateful to you for the work you do. Whether you are caring for patients, educating the next generation, conducting research that addresses the key problems that our patients face, or providing administrative support for these important missions, what you do is extremely important. Therefore, it is imperative that you take good care of yourself. As always, I remind you of the importance of keeping to your routines in eating, sleeping and exercise and the essential role that resilience plays, which as you know can be boosted through gratitude and altruism. Fortunately, our jobs here at Penn give us the opportunity to be altruistic every day! Thank you again!

Warmly, m

CONGRATULATION RACHEL HOWELL ON YOUR PROMOTION TO SENIOR PRACTICE MANAGER!

Rachel joined Penn Medicine in 2017 and the Department of Psychiatry in 2019. Highlights of Rachel’s time with the Department include major initiatives such as developing protocols for the Psychiatry Call Center, opening and expanding the new TEAM Clinic, and collaboratively rightsizing the Women’s Behavioral Wellness Program. The Senior Practice Manager position is new in the Department of Psychiatry, and Rachel began the position effective 11/14/21. In her new role Rachel will extend her excellent operations’ management skills to the 2nd floor Outpatient Psychiatry Clinic (OPC), and provide regulatory support to the complex clinical practice. Additionally, Rachel will directly manage The Center for the Treatment and Study of Anxiety (CTSA), and indirectly manage the TEAM Clinic, The Charles O’Brien Center, Women’s Behavioral Wellness, and the Parkinson’s Disease Clinic. Those who have worked with Rachel know she is a pleasure, as well as an engaged colleague whose work ethic is impeccable. Please join me in congratulating Rachel and wishing her much success, professional development, and fulfillment in her new role!
